Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: applicant argues that Yamamoto fails to identify a teaching or suggestion "the top sides of contact areas forming a planar overall top side with the active top of the sensor chip and the plastic plate" as recited in claims 14 and 32. However, Ohta discloses this feature. Ohta discloses a sensor chip 33 is embedded in substrate 31 and is co-planar with the substrate 31 (Ohta fig. 26). Ohta provides a motivation to combine with Yamamoto, which is the smooth flattening layer (the chip and the substrate) permitting the wiring be made easily (Ohta col. 24, lines 15-19). Therefore, combining the teaching of Ohta and incorporating into Yamamoto would allow the chip 1 be co-planar with the package substrate 3 and the wiring 8 be made easily with pads 2. the combination of Yamamoto and Ohta is proper..
